Four-hour (70 km) tour visiting all the ecosystems that make up this natural site to enjoy their variety, ecological diversity, sharp landscape contrasts, flora and wildlife.

Visit to the 28km-long coast of Doñana, one of the most important virgin sand beaches in Europe, where you can watch a great variety of coastal birds.

We will cross the mobile dunes ecosystem, one of the most beautiful and amazing landscapes in Doñana, a sand barrier separating the sea from the marshland.

We will travel along the Vera, the contact zone between the sand area and the clay soils of the marshland, where we will find the largest pastureland and the highest concentration of herbivores in the park.

Then we will enter the marshes, the most important ecosystem in Doñana, and one of the best-known wetlands in Europe, a sanctuary for birds in their migration flyways between Europe and Africa and a true paradise for bird lovers.

We will travel through the Mediterranean forest area until the Guadalquivir River bank and then drive down to its estuary in front of Sanlúcar de Barrameda.

During the tour, the driver-guide will explain and help us understand the characteristics of the different ecosystems we will pass, their flora and wildlife, as well as any other element of interest we may see during the visit.
